Mobilizing When It Matters Most

Letter From the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank Board Chair and President

Gary Kirkpatrick
Chair, Board of Directors

Michael Flood
President and CEO

Dear Supporters,

The year 2025 tested the resilience of Los Angeles County residents in ways no one could have fully anticipated. As we look back on the Food Bank's decades of service, we are reminded that while the challenges were significant, the collective compassion of our community was even greater. The work of the Food Bank is only possible because of you, and we share the impact of your generosity with deep gratitude.

The Food Bank's resilience and responsiveness were instrumental during the Greater Los Angeles Wildfires. As families were displaced and neighborhoods were clouded by uncertainty, the Food Bank mobilized quickly to ensure that food, water and other essential items remained a constant for those who had lost so much and for those indirectly affected by the fires, many of whom lost power, housing, employment, and faced other challenges.

Then, as the recovery from the wildfires was still underway, the Government shutdown at the end of 2025 created a new wave of instability. Thousands of federal employees and contractors across Los Angeles County found themselves without a paycheck, suddenly facing food insecurity, and the disruption to CalFresh benefits left millions of people in a difficult, uncertain situation. Because of your proactive support, we were able to scale our operations to meet this sudden surge in demand, providing a critical safety net when traditional systems were paused.

The results for 2025 were not found in the disasters, but in the response by the Food Bank and our many partners. It was amazing to witness people from every corner of the county come together. From the volunteers who joined us at our distribution centers to the donors who increased their giving during the most difficult months, your commitment ensured that no neighbor was left to face these crises alone.

Everything we achieved in 2025 reflects your belief in our mission. We are heartened to live in a community where providing food and nutrition is a priority, and neighbors look out for one another, regardless of obstacles. Thank you for standing with the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank and for giving our community hope for a brighter, more secure future.

With sincere appreciation,

Gary Kirkpatrick

Vision

No one goes hungry in Los Angeles County.

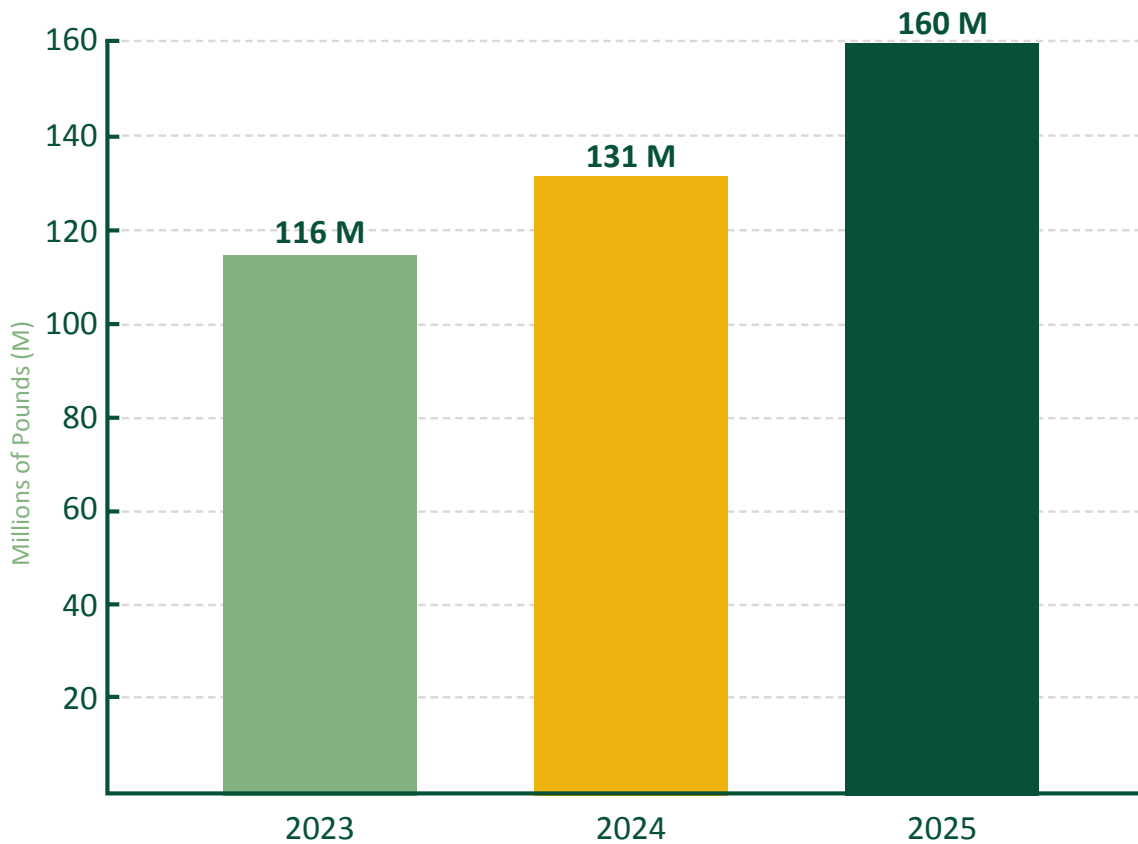

Mission

To mobilize resources to fight hunger in our community.

- Source and acquire nutritious food, other products, and distribute them to people experiencing nutrition insecurity through our partner agency network and directly through programs;
- Energize the community to get involved and support hunger relief; and
- Conduct hunger and nutrition education and awareness campaigns and advocate for public policies that benefit the people we serve.

Meeting Urgent Need Across Los Angeles County

Thanks to community support, the Food Bank responded to urgent challenges throughout the year, including wildfire relief efforts and disruptions caused by the Federal Government shutdown. Thanks to the strong support from food donors, 36,000 volunteers, in-kind and financial donors, the Food Bank and our partner agencies served an average of more than 1.1 million people per month throughout 2025.

Working with many partners, the Food Bank acquired and distributed nearly 160 million pounds of food and product, valued at $259 million, to families, older adults, children, and individuals seeking assistance. In addition, the Food Bank's Nutrition Education, CalFresh Outreach, Children's Nutrition and Senior Nutrition programs expanded their reach and service thanks to increased financial support for these programs.

This is all made possible by the incredible support of people like you.

Standing Together in Crisis

When the Greater Los Angeles Wildfires displaced hundreds of thousands of people in early 2025, the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank responded quickly alongside government partners, disaster relief organizations, and partner agencies to provide emergency food and supplies. Distributions took place through partner agencies, drive-through events, mobile food pantries, and wildfire resource hubs to ensure families could access support during rapidly changing conditions.

Among those affected was Julius, whose Altadena home was destroyed in the Eaton fire after nearly fifty years in his family. Displaced to Inglewood with his wife, daughter, and granddaughter, Julius received food assistance at a resource fair at SoFi Stadium. Throughout 2025, the Food Bank distributed 23.5 million pounds of food and essential products for disaster response efforts as communities faced the devastating economic effects of the wildfires.

Responding to the Need

Government shutdowns can increase food insecurity by disrupting income and public benefits. In 2025, the shutdown affected CalFresh benefits for an estimated 1 million households in Los Angeles County, leaving many families without reliable access to food. In response, the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank quickly expanded distributions through its partner agency network and large-scale emergency events, supported by donor generosity and a $10 million investment from the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors.

One of many major response efforts included a large drive-through distribution at The Forum in Inglewood on November 1, 2025, when many households first experienced CalFresh disruptions. Thanks to strong community partnerships, the Food Bank continued serving more than 1 million people each month during this period of heightened need.

BackPack Program Helps Ensure Children Have Food Beyond the School Day

For more than twenty years, the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank's BackPack Program has helped children and families across Los Angeles County access nutritious food outside of school hours. With one in four children facing food insecurity, the program helps ensure that students who rely on school meals during the week also have food on weekends and during school breaks.

At Main Street Elementary School, parent volunteer Victoria has spent nearly two decades supporting families through monthly food distributions. Staples like bread, potatoes, and protein help parents prepare meals at home and provide relief during difficult times. The BackPack Program helps reduce stress for families facing rising food costs while ensuring children have reliable access to food beyond the classroom.

Fueling the Future: Donors Power Child Nutrition Across Los Angeles County

Donors and partners play an important role in supporting child nutrition programs across Los Angeles County. Donors like the Los Angeles Dodgers Foundation, the Ella Fitzgerald Charitable Foundation, Janie Buss, and FOX Corporation have helped expand access to nutritious food through programs like the Backpack Program, ensuring children have reliable meals outside of school hours.

Their shared commitment helps bridge nutrition gaps and reinforces the importance of collaboration in addressing childhood food insecurity.

Helping Older Adults Stay Nourished

For more than twenty-two years, the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank has supported older adults through the Commodity Supplemental Food Program (CSFP), one of the largest programs of its kind in the nation. Each month, more than 25,000 adults age sixty and older receive nutritious food through more than 150 distribution sites across Los Angeles County. Monthly food packages include essentials like canned fruits and vegetables, cereal, milk, pasta, rice, and peanut butter, helping older adults stretch limited incomes and cover other basic expenses.

For neighbors like Juan Jose and Javier, CSFP provides reliable support that helps them stay healthy and independent. Donor support makes this program possible, ensuring older adults have consistent access to nutritious food each month.

Places like food pantries are so pivotal to communities that are underfunded, underdeveloped... It really does help bring forth a sense of community and awareness of hunger.

- Cheryl

Right now, with how expensive everything is, what we receive is not enough,” Anabel said. “Now, you go to the market, and you do not bring much back in comparison to how it was before. I see my cart, and everything that we get, and I compare it to the market, and it is a lot, it is almost $400.

- Anabel

The Transformative Power of Major Gifts

The Los Angeles Regional Food Bank's ability to respond to hunger at scale is made possible by the extraordinary generosity of our donors. Gifts of all kinds make a meaningful difference in the lives of the people we serve. However, large gifts fuel innovation, strengthen infrastructure, and allow the Food Bank to meet both everyday needs and moments of crisis with speed and compassion. In 2025, major donors played a critical role in helping the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank provide food and essential items to the people we serve.

Innovative partnerships also played a role this year. Through collaborations with Colossal's "Favorite Couple" contest, new audiences were engaged in the fight against hunger, raising critical funds and awareness while inspiring community participation in meaningful ways.

Thank You, Team #WeFeedLA!

Elementary schools, high schools, and college organizations hosted fundraising events to support the Food Bank's mission that no one goes hungry in Los Angeles County. We want to give a special thanks to USC Panhellenic, which hosted two fundraisers and raised over $4,700. Thank you to all of our #WeFeedLA participants for making our work possible.

Events

The fourth annual “A Million Reasons”

fundraising event welcomed more than 200 guests for an unforgettable evening in support of the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank. The fundraising event was hosted by Food Bank board member and Platinum donor Keith Addis and his wife, Keri Selig, at their home in the Hollywood Hills. It was made possible by generous sponsors, including United Airlines, which was the presenting sponsor. Guests enjoyed a special performance by acclaimed actor and musician Jeff Goldblum and The Mildred Snitzer Orchestra.

Stream-a-thon

On December 18, 2025, the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank hosted its first-ever Stream-A-Thon, transforming its South Los Angeles warehouse into a powerful stage for music and impact. Headlined by Macy Gray, the event brought together artists, supporters, and online viewers to raise funds to fight hunger across Los Angeles County. Macy Gray, joined by a talented lineup of performers, used music to spotlight the urgent need for food assistance in the community. The event also featured food from Border Grill’s renowned chefs Susan Feniger and Mary Sue Milliken, longtime supporters of the Food Bank’s mission.

Food From The Bar challenges legal firms, law schools, and legal services organizations to see who can raise the most funds, acquire the most food, and work the most volunteer hours to feed families with children over the summer months. Since the campaign began in Los Angeles in 2009, it has raised more than $7 million.

With Andrew Whitworth returning as the master of ceremonies, hundreds of individuals gathered at SoFi Stadium for the 10th annual Taste of the Rams, raising nearly $220,000 in support of the Food Bank. The evening featured major support from longstanding Food Bank partners, including Don Lee Farms and Bank of America. Los Angeles Rams wide receiver Davante Adams served as the event's honorary chair. Renowned local chefs prepared delicious food and beverages.

SEASON FOR SHARING

The 23rd annual Season for Sharing event, hosted by the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank and sponsored by FedEx, took place at the Omni Hotel in LA. Each year, this signature event highlights the vital role donors, individuals, and organizations play in providing nutritious food to our neighbors in need across Los Angeles County.

The Power of Partnerships

Fighting hunger takes everyone coming together. The Los Angeles Regional Food Bank is fortunate to have such incredible partners in the media who help us raise awareness for our essential work.

Feed SoCal

The 2025 Feed SoCal campaign with ABC7 raised more than $55,000 in support of local hunger relief efforts. The campaign also highlighted seasonal challenges, as children who rely on school meals during the academic year may experience nutritional gaps over the summer months.

Help for the Hungry

Help for the Hungry once again partnered with Ralphs, Food 4 Less, and donors to raise essential funds and awareness about nutrition insecurity, supported by media coverage throughout the holiday season. Through NBC4 and Telemundo 52's eighth annual Helping Our Community campaign, held in collaboration with Food 4 Less and Ralphs, more than $118,000 was raised during the 2025 holiday season through text-to-give donations and in-store contributions. Since its launch in 2018, the campaign has raised over $2.9 million to support local food banks, including the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank.

Awareness Amid Uncertainty

Spectrum News 1, CBS Los Angeles, KTLA, and others also supported the Food Bank in 2025 by helping to raise the funds that make our work possible.

- The KTLA Cares campaign ran in the last quarter of 2025, raising awareness and funds for the Food Bank's work.
- CBS LA's Emergency Food Donation Drive during the Government shutdown motivated many people living in Los Angeles County to donate funds and food to help their neighbors.
- Spectrum News 1 also drove traffic to a custom donation page, helping the Food Bank raise funds when it was needed most.

Together, these initiatives not only deliver essential food resources but also underscore a powerful message: addressing hunger takes a collective effort, and no one should face it alone. The Food Bank is grateful to all partners and supporters who help make this work possible.

Helping Hands: Making a Difference in the Community

The First Church of the Nazarene in Pasadena (PazNaz) is a valued partner of the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank and was honored at the 2025 Season for Sharing luncheon as winner of the Food Bank's Community Spirit Award. PazNaz provides groceries and essentials to families experiencing food insecurity through its Helping Hands program. After the Eaton Fire destroyed the church's Altadena location, PazNaz continued serving the community, distributing more than 15,000 pounds of food each week.

For Rohan, who lost his caregiving job and now supports an eleven-person household through temporary work, the food distributions have been critical. The nutritious food he receives helps his family stretch their limited budget. "Normally, I go to the stores, and I go to the clearance section," he said. "Most of it is damaged, but here, they give a really good product."

The Mobile Food Pantry: Bringing Food Directly to Communities

The Los Angeles Regional Food Bank's Mobile Food Pantry is a vital lifeline for neighbors facing hunger, especially in communities with limited access to food. By bringing nutritious groceries directly into underserved neighborhoods, this program ensures families can access the food they need, no matter where they live.

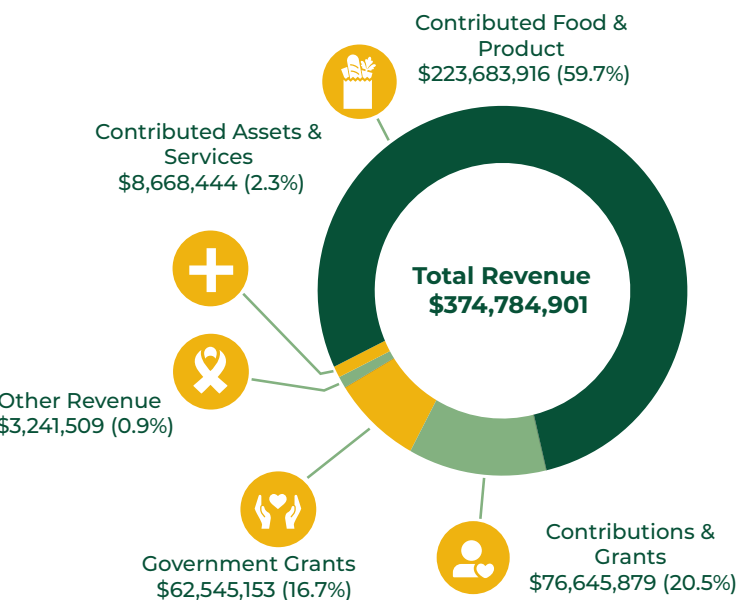

Across Los Angeles County, nearly 2 million people experience food insecurity, many living in food deserts or without reliable transportation. The Mobile Food Pantry helps bridge this gap by delivering fresh produce, dairy, protein, grains, and pantry staples directly to communities, health clinics, and college campuses.

In 2025, the Mobile Food Pantry held 284 distributions at twenty-nine sites, distributing 5.4 million pounds of nutritious food, including more than 1.7 million pounds of fresh produce, reaching over 628,000 individuals.

Beyond access, the Mobile Food Pantry also helps reduce food waste by diverting fresh, perishable items to families rather than sending them to landfills. Generous donations, including a donation match from the Herb Alpert Foundation, support the Mobile Food Pantry.

Expanding Support: The Food Bank's Long Beach Hub

The opening of the Long Beach Hub marks a major expansion of the Food Bank's capacity to serve communities across the South Bay. Transitioning from a temporary outdoor site to a permanent facility improves reliability and significantly increases the Food Bank's ability to store, stage, and distribute food more efficiently. By reducing travel time for partner agencies and enabling the onboarding of new partners, the hub brings critical food assistance closer to neighbors who need it most.

Together with the South Los Angeles and City of Industry Distribution Centers, the Long Beach hub strengthens a coordinated, three-site network designed to meet everyday demand and moments of crisis. This expanded infrastructure enhances flexibility, improves response times, and ensures the Food Bank can continue scaling its impact as the need for food assistance remains high.

Capacity Building for Agencies

The Los Angeles Regional Food Bank's partner agency network distributes the majority of the food to local communities. Without these amazing partners, the Food Bank's work would be immensely difficult. That is why the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank is investing in these partner agencies by providing refrigerated trucks and vans, conveyor belts, commercial refrigerators and freezers, pallet jacks, and other equipment to support their essential work.

Very Inspiring People

During times of crisis, the demand for food assistance from the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank and its network of hundreds of partner agencies rises dramatically. As many families and individuals struggle with ongoing inflation, having regular access to nutritious food should not be another burden.

Fortunately, Los Angeles County is generous. Throughout the year, celebrities come together to help our neighbors by donating funds and time to the Food Bank and our partners.

Support from Professional Sports

The Los Angeles Regional Food Bank is fortunate to be in a county with so many active and generous professional sports teams.

Large-scale food distributions remained a cornerstone of the Food Bank's work, including high-impact community events in partnership with the Los Angeles Rams, Los Angeles Clippers, and other Los Angeles teams. These organizations stepped up to host food and product distributions throughout Los Angeles County, including at Los Angeles stadiums during the wildfires and government shutdown.

The partnership between the Los Angeles Clippers and the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank continued to make a meaningful impact in 2025, proving that the fight against hunger extends far beyond game day.

As part of their annual Feed the Community initiative, Clippers players, staff, and team leadership joined Food Bank volunteers to help sort, pack, and prepare nutritious food for families across Los Angeles County. Team members also dedicated a special volunteer day at the Food Bank, rolling up their sleeves alongside community members to support neighbors facing food insecurity.

In October 2025, the Clippers hosted a large drive-through distribution at the historic Forum. More than 2,500 individuals facing food insecurity received groceries and essential items, made possible through this collaborative effort.

Through hands-on service, advocacy, and continued partnership, the Clippers are helping ensure families have access to nutritious food when they need it most. For the Food Bank, partnerships like this are about more than volunteer hours; they build awareness, inspire action, and strengthen our ability to serve more than 1 million people each month across Los Angeles County.

The Feeding LA Tomorrow Legacy Society was founded to recognize those donors who provide support through a bequest or planned gifts.

Honoring David L. Kamberg: A Legacy of Compassion and Generosity

David L. Kamberg came to the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank alongside his mother. The two volunteered side by side. Those hours spent together were profoundly meaningful to David, a living expression of shared values and compassion. Joined by so many dedicated volunteers, they gave their time and energy to support the fight against hunger in Los Angeles, where more than 2 million children, older adults, families, and individuals face food and nutrition insecurity.

David passed away in 2020. He wanted his resources to have the greatest possible effect close to home, and to honor his mother's lifelong example. David chose to leave more than half of his estate to the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank. This remarkable gift is the largest legacy gift the Food Bank has received in its fifty-three years of service.

Through this legacy of compassion and generosity, David joins the distinguished members of our Legacy Society, whose gifts are strengthening our community today and offering hope for the future.

Everyone Can Do Something to Help Fight Hunger

Join the Legacy Society

By including the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank in your will, trust, or as a beneficiary of your retirement assets, insurance, or Donor-Advised Fund, you can help build a future in which no one in our community goes hungry. If you have already taken this thoughtful step, please reach out so we can celebrate and recognize your lasting commitment alongside others who share your vision.

For Art Salter, giving back is always worth the drive.

For more than two decades, Art Salter has dedicated his time to fighting food insecurity. After volunteering for eighteen years with a partner agency, he wanted to understand better where the food came from and how it reached families in need. That curiosity led him to the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank, where he has volunteered for more than five years. Alongside his volunteer service, Art and his wife also helped secure grant funding through the Max Factor Family Foundation, providing a $25,000 gift that further supports the Food Bank's mission to provide food and hope across LA County.

At the Food Bank, Art helps keep production lines running smoothly so volunteers can efficiently pack thousands of food boxes each shift. Seeing the teamwork, coordination, and the speed at which food reaches families has deepened his appreciation for the organization's impact. Whether through volunteering his time or helping secure critical funding, Art believes that those who are fortunate enough to give back should do so and that every contribution can make a meaningful difference.
